Foster City, CA – November 20, 2019 – OnlineColleges.com, an online resource that helps students find schools and programs tailored to their needs, has just undergone a fresh redesign featuring new tools and guidance.

- A detailed financial aid guide providing extensive guidance on funding sources and options
- Comprehensive information on degree programs by state, including information on the best careers and industries as well as the most prominent metro areas

The detailed CCT now enables prospective students to assess differences between:

- Average grant aid amount
- Many other factors

“Visitors can enjoy improved site speed and responsiveness when conducting research,” explains Daniel Talamantes, editor for OnlineColleges.com. “Consumers should also have a greatly improved experience when they assess this information resource using mobile devices.”

Marcelle White, spokesperson for OnlineColleges.com, is available to discuss different ways students can approach finding a degree program that may be the best fit for their needs.
