Insurance.com Offers Resources in the Eye of a Hurricane

As Hurricane Laura plows in, the leading insurance comparison site provides assistance and answers a host of questions about “disaster-related” insurance

Foster City, CA – Aug. 27, 2020 – The National Hurricane Center warns this week that time is of the essence to “protect life and property,” as Hurricane Laura becomes the latest natural disaster to pose a threat to safety and homes in the United States.

With what is deemed a Category 4 “disastrous” storm system, attention turns to concerns over insurance protection, should it be needed due to storm damage. Insurance.com, a leading insurance comparison site, has valuable resources available to address questions about insurance and natural disasters.

These resources include:

- Understanding hurricane insurance: This comprehensive guide details what hurricane insurance covers, how to buy it, where deductibles are the highest (and lowest), how to purchase it at the last minute, and how to file a claim.
- Flood insurance: A complete guide: This resource thoroughly explains how flood insurance works, how to purchase it, and what it does (and doesn’t) cover. Floods are the most common natural disaster, and sometimes people are caught with their waders down.
- Does homeowners insurance cover spoiled food after a power outage? This article addresses issues over loss from power outages, such as electronics, spoiled food and burst pipes.
- Hail damage and home insurance coverage: What you need to know: Hail damage is covered by most standard homeowner insurance policies, but how it is applied varies greatly.

Penny Gusner is available to comment on hurricane-related insurance coverage and answer questions about a variety of insurance topics.
